La Boutique des Huit Chapeaux et Quarante Femmes (Eight and Forty)

The Eight and Forty was organized in June 1922. The organization held its first Marche Nationale that same year in New Orleans.

Although the organization was originally founded to provide its members with fun and fellowship, it was soon discovered it could be of service. The following objective was added to its organizational plan in 1924 — “such service to be particularly concerned with child welfare.” From there the National Child Welfare Committee of The American Legion gave to the Eight and Forty as a special assignment: “Preventive tuberculosis service along educational lines with, when possible, financial assistance providing for care and treatment of children in cooperation with recognized agencies and methods.” This assignment was later expanded beyond tuberculosis to “lung and respiratory diseases in children.”

In the course of providing this service, the need for nurses educated in the special area of lung and respiratory disease patients became evident. With that in mind, the Eight and Forty established this scholarship to assist registered nurses in expanding their knowledge in the lung and respiratory disease area. Since the first awards were made in 1957, more than $1.4 million have been provided to nurses interested in learning more about this critical care area.
