MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis is situated in the heart of vacation land. The city itself offers every lure of the out-of-doors. It is the gateway to Minnesota's region of Ten Thousand Lakes, and the largest city in the northwest.

Minneapolis has within its own bounds every attraction to offer the tourist. Yachting, canoeing, motorboating, swimming, fishing, golf and tennis are to be enjoyed on waters and properties controlled by the City Park Board within a few minutes' ride by automobile or street car from the Loop district.

One of the most fascinating of automobile drives is offered in the miles of boulevard which take the autoist past the string of five lakes which lie within the city proper.

Minneapolis occupies a unique position as an art and music center. The Minneapolis Institute of Arts at Stevens Avenue and 24th Street is placing a special exhibit of silks, post impressionists' paintings and old masters for American Legion Convention visitors. The Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra has established an enviable record throughout the country and gives fortnightly concerts with prominent artists as soloists and public Sunday concerts, at the Auditorium, weekly from October until early spring.

Visitors to the Convention will find it worth while to visit the University of Minnesota, Minnehaha Falls, the Flour Mills, St. Anthony Falls and other spots of interest. A welcome is always extended to visitors at any of the Flour Mills.

The city extends a cordial welcome to Legion Delegates. We are glad you are here. Come again and come often.

St. Paul, our sister city, has many attractive show places. The Capitol Building, one of the most beautiful in the country, Como Park, Indian Mounds, White Bear Lake and the stockyards in South St. Paul are well worth a visit.

Beautiful Summit Avenue is an ideal automobile drive, which may be reached from Minneapolis via Lake Street and the Mississippi River boulevard.

An allotment of certificates was mailed early in October to each State Headquarters and each certificate entitled a delegate or alternate to purchase transportation at reduced rates not only for himself, but also for members of his immediate family between the dates specified in the full detailed instructions which National Headquarters sent to each State Headquarters. The return half of the ticket must be validated in Minneapolis on day of departure. This may be done at Railroad Administration Ticket Office, 6th Street and Second Avenue South, at either of the Railway Stations and at the Auditorium. Validation must be completed not later than November 17th.

Announcement of validation scheme will be made at Convention sessions.
A HISTORY OF THE AMERICAN LEGION

During the winter of 1918-1919, the Armistice having been signed, one of the topics most generally discussed by the entire American army was what kind of a veterans' organization would there be for the present great war which would correspond to the Grand Army of the Republic and the Confederate Veterans arising out of the Civil War.

February 15th, 1919, a group of about twenty-five Americans drawn from all parts of the American Expeditionary Forces were gathered together in Paris and a general discussion of the subject resulted in a decision to call a meeting for March 15th in Paris at which the whole matter could be gone over in detail. About one thousand delegates, officers and enlisted men, representing the entire A. E. F., gathered on that date and after a three-day conference, a temporary constitution was drawn up, the name American Legion chosen and it was decided to attempt no organization in France, but rather to suggest to the troops at home to organize by states and localities.

On May 8th, 9th and 10th, 1919, about twelve hundred delegates representing every state in the Union met together in St. Louis, approved the name "American Legion," adopted the tentative constitution and decided to organize thoroughly every State in preparation for the First National Convention to be held in Minneapolis, November 11th, 1919, because that would be the first anniversary of the cessation of hostilities and by that date practically all service persons here and abroad would be demobilized.

There has been such a ready response to the idea of organizing ex-service persons into a great veteran organization called the American Legion, that this dream has grown in less than a year to a powerful organization of over a million members and a potential membership of over four million.

In the American Legion there is no difference or distinction between an officer and an enlisted man, between the man who served in France and the one who stood ready in this country to join him. Any one who served honorably in the Army, Navy or Marine Corps between April 6th, 1917, and November 11, 1918, is eligible to membership.

Its purpose is two-fold, continuing service to our Country and mutual helpfulness to those of our comrades needing our aid. The American Legion will see to it that America, for which every ex-service man was willing to lay down his life, remains 100 per cent American and that the lawful and orderly form of our Government shall at all times prevail. It will also see that our military policy shall be such that America will always be safe for Americans. The American Legion will see that our disabled comrades receive such just and liberal compensation as they have reason to expect from a thankful and generous people. It has grown already to be a great force for good—the greatest single factor for law and order in this country. It has and will have no interest in politics. It will concern itself merely with policies for the general good of the whole country which will make our America a greater and better one for generations to come, in order that our brave comrades shall not have died in vain.
